

Private Jet Charter Prices Report Stars Heading to Croatia to Soak Up the Sun This Summer

Tuesday 17 July, 2012

With much of Europe experiencing a cooler than expected summertime, many celebrities are heading to southern parts of Europe for their holidays this year. One destination in the spot light is Croatia which has attracted the rich and famous. Tamara Ecclestone the 27-year-old daughter of Formula One boss Bernie Ecclestone has been teasing her Twitter followers with a series of snaps from her sun-soaked holiday in Croatia. She is one of the many stars heading to Croatia.

Croatia is a relatively new holiday zone with a steadily developing tourism industry. This summer celebrities will be flying into Croatia to take advantage of its remote beaches and hidden coastline bays where they will be uninterrupted by crowds of fellow holiday makers and Paparazzi. One website in particular is offering private jet flights to Croatia for celebrities and that is private jet charter prices dot com. The company has experience with delivering first class confidential flights to private clients.

Croatia has nearly 2,000 miles of coastline plus thousands of islands. There's plenty on offer in Croatia whether you're backpacking or plan on staying onboard a private yacht. Regardless of your budget Croatia has something to offer for everyone.

The current weather forecast in northern Europe hasn't been good to date. With so many British stars wanting sunshine, they've flown further to find sunshine this summer.

Celebrities are usually keen to getaway for pleasure all year round however; the problems they face when they are away usually consist of unwanted attention from Paparazzi. Travelling to remote regions of the world such as uninhabited islands ensures that they don't run into unwanted attention when they want to relax.
