

Procter & Gamble and Tesco team up to deliver immersive mobile experience

Thursday 31 July, 2014

Procter & Gamble (P&G), Tesco and Alton Towers Resort have teamed up with Engine Creative to launch a new AR 3D experience which enables users to explore the magical world of CBeebies Land (now open at the Alton Towers Resort) on their mobile.

The Augmented Reality (AR) experience is triggered via in-store POS which is available throughout Tesco stores. This latest brand collaboration for the Tesco Discover AR platform is part of the wider P&G campaign with CBeebies Land, which was developed by Mediator, a leading partnerships and promotions agency. The latest wave of activity is released to coincide with the school Summer holidays and rewards consumers with a free promotional voucher entitling them to 2 x 1/2 price entries, by purchasing any one of a range of P&G products.

The AR experience allows CBeebies Land to magically come to life in 3D before your eyes and has something for everyone https://vimeo.com/102111484 Children are able to experience a POV video of the Postman Pat Parcel Post ride and also have their photo taken alongside the In The Night Garden Magical Boat Ride. For mum and dad, there are a range of incentives to participate including a 'tweet to win' competition.

Delivering engaging and useful Augmented Reality

Major global consumer brands including Coca-Cola and Disney have already made a commitment to developing engaging and useful AR content on the Tesco Discover AR platform as Augmented Reality continues to grow into an essential channel for forward thinking brands.

Tesco's Mark Cody comments on the growing value of their own brand Augmented Reality initiative:

"Tesco Discover enables our brand partners to connect with our shoppers through useful and engaging digital content. This interaction can be in the context of our retail stores, on products and across all of our magazines.

Our 360° approach to AR enables us to turn our stores and publications into retail theatre with immersive experiences that provides our customers access to deeper product information across our range. Since we activated the augmented channel via the Tesco Discover AR platform we have seen steady growth in user numbers and significant engagement times compared to other forms of digital media - 3 to 6 minutes on average depending on the activity."

Alton Towers Resort's Annette Middleton comments ion the value of AR to the attraction: "We recognise the importance of AR technology for its ability to extend the Alton Towers Resort experience on and off-park. We're excited to have CBeebies Land bought to life in this way, as it allows us to showcase our great new attraction coupled with a compelling promotional entry offer to provide our guests with the best possible value."

Reinventing the retail experience

Tesco have taken the lead in the retail sector by enabling their customers to connect the physical world to the internet using their Tesco Discover AR platform. Whilst other major retailers play catch up, Tesco continues to reinvent the retail experience using Augmented Reality technology in our increasingly connected world.
