Project Audio Visual Shortlisted for AV Technology Award

Friday 1 May, 2020

Project Audio Visual who are a leading audio visual and unified communications solutions provider are pleased to announce that it has been shortlisted to the final 6 for the 2020 AV Technology Award's Corporate Project of the Year category.

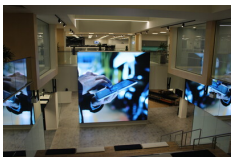

“In what is our maiden year for entering into industry recognised awards, this is a major achievement for the team in that we have been shortlisted in the final 6 for an award where entrants span the entire globe,# says Mass Lambresa, MD & Co-Founder. “At Project Audio Visual we are more like a family than a traditional corporate style workplace and this is a moment for all of us to be very proud. We take pride in ensuring that our clients get not just the best system design at a price that fits their budget, but also the best possible service both during and after projects are completed”

In the last 12 months, Project Audio Visual have set up a U.S division to allow them to service their global clients on both sides of the Atlantic as well as the Middle East and beyond. The Solera UK HQ project, for which they have been shortlisted as a finalist for in this award category was undertaken for one of their Global clients, of which they are currently involved in multiple HQ re-fits worldwide. This project has also gained Project Audio Visual the status of preferred audio visual partner for a major fit-out company, due to the calibre of work undertaken and also ease of communication involved throughout the project, as well as completing within the set timescale.

Due to the ongoing global Covid-19 pandemic, this years awards ceremony has now become digital to allow it to go ahead as planned and winners in each category will be announced on Thursday 25th June.
