Raising The Bar In Complete Workspace Solutions, Podia Officially Launches in the UK

Wednesday 12 May, 2021

Wednesday, May 12, 2021 — Newbury: Podia, a new disruptive service provider that brings together premium technology, stylish furniture and supportive employee wellbeing content as-a-service, has today launched in the UK to serve both SME and Enterprise businesses.

Addressing many of the challenges businesses have faced since the pandemic, Podia helps organisations deliver effective hybrid working through a simplified purchase, install and user experience of ultimate workspaces. This coupled with a powerful remote team management service makes Podia a complete solution for employers who are managing a remote global workforce, enhancing an office space or upgrading a home office.

Established by former CEO and CTO of award-winning unified communications technology distributor, Steve Harris and Rob Smith are the lead-investors where they hope to replicate the success they had during their 11 year reign at the former tech company.

Harris, commented: “We’re really excited to be launching Podia and have built a really strong team of staff and advisors that can help enable businesses to thrive and embrace new ways of working. Our shared ethos and passion for effective collaboration is demonstrated in everything we do, and we want to deliver this experience to every workspace in the home and the office”.

Smith, adds: “We believe that we truly have a unique proposition which is going to disrupt the market. We can deliver and install fully integrated workspaces in a few days and our Elevate Portal enables businesses to on-board and manage their remote staff. This combined with well-being and productivity content means businesses have one place to manage everything they need in delivering an inclusive and effective experience for remote staff”.

Available across the UK, Podia home and office workspace solutions are available to purchase now directly through the Podia sales department plus via agents who share the common goal in delivering next level workspaces. Due to launch June 1st 2021, Podia will also release an intuitive e-commerce platform which will enable individuals to purchase the high-performance workspaces for their own homes.
