Alliance Helps Dealers of Art and Antiques to Effortlessly Sell Stock Online

November 2021, LONDON, UK—Ronati has announced a global partnership and technical integration with 2Covet marketplace. Founded by dealers for dealers, 2Covet provides a transparent, reliable marketplace that connects world-renowned art and antiques dealers and their most exceptional pieces with discerning buyers and collectors.

The Ronati eCommerce Manager (eCM) is the only multi-marketplace stock management system built specifically for sellers of unique and ever-changing stock. Dealers can currently manage their inventory listings across 15 online marketplaces, with new marketplaces being added monthly. The partnership enables 2Covet dealers to easily post, edit and sell their stock on 2Covet as well as their own websites and other marketplaces, eradicating hours of endless frustration spent uploading and tracking item details and images on multiple sites. The eCommerce Manager frees up sellers for what's truly important: researching, finding, and selling more beautiful pieces.

Steve Sly, 2Covet Director; leading expert in Japanese art

"Ronati seeks to help make dealers' lives easier," notes Steve Sly, 2Covet Director. "They also represent a forward-thinking company looking to build relationships that will benefit the members of 2Covet both now and into the future. Our directors are looking forward to forging a long-term partnership with Ronati."

Ronati's Founder and CEO, Stacey Tiveron, notes:

"It is a true pleasure to work with 2Covet and their Directors on this partnership and technical integration. We are inspired by their dynamic ideas, curation of community and vision to make dealers' lives easier."
