

Running to raise tinnitus awareness

Wednesday 5 May, 2021

43-year-old Health and Safety Adviser Ben Wigley, from Scunthorpe, has challenged himself to complete The Great Charity Run 30-mile challenge this month in support of the British Tinnitus Association (BTA), a charity that has helped him manage his tinnitus, a debilitating condition that affects around 18,500 adults in North Lincolnshire alone, and 1 in 8 people nationally.

Ben has lived with tinnitus for around eight years now. He shared: "It can be quite debilitating and damaging to mental health, and I struggled to cope with it early on resulting in me shying away from social interaction in my personal and professional lives, as I struggled to hear conversations and noisy places made it worse."

"The information and help provided by the BTA has been invaluable in helping me cope with the condition and get access to medical help and support, which has got me into a good place with my tinnitus now and I want to give back and raise some money for this very worthy cause."

Ben has just completed the Couch to 5K programme and is motivated to keep running in May whilst also raising awareness of tinnitus. His challenge also coincides with the Run for Heroes #5kMay challenge, which is a great opportunity for others to support causes close to their hearts by completing 5k, donating £5 and nominating 5 people to do the same.

The British Tinnitus Association's vision is "A world where no one suffers from tinnitus" which Ben fully supports. He is hoping that his fundraising challenge will get people taking about tinnitus and raise the vital funds needed to make sure people can access the support they need now, and fund future tinnitus research, to ultimately find a cure.

The BTA's Fundraising Officer Jess Pollard commented "Ben has overcome so much to be in the place he is today and we're so grateful that he is able to share his experience to support others and to keep raising awareness!"
