Sale Makers Market Returns This Sunday with Street Food, Live Music and Family Entertainment

Sale Makers Market is set to return this Sunday to Stanley Square and School Road, bringing together independent traders, artisan food vendors, live entertainment and family-friendly activities for a vibrant community day out in the heart of Sale.

Running from 11am to 4pm, the popular monthly market will showcase a wide variety of local makers, small businesses and street food vendors, offering visitors the opportunity to shop unique handmade products while enjoying live performances and activities for all ages.

Entertainment throughout the day will be provided by the Cancer Research Buskers, who will perform live music in support of a charitable cause. Families can also enjoy face painting and free children's crafting sessions hosted by Ceci, creating a fun and welcoming atmosphere for younger visitors.

This month's street food lineup includes authentic Greek cuisine from Cyprus Kouzina, Nepalese street food from Jyotismomo, and BBQ sandwiches from Gorilla Eats.

Alongside the food and entertainment, visitors can browse a diverse selection of independent traders offering handmade goods, artisan products, sweet treats, unique gifts and one-of-a-kind finds.

The event aims to celebrate and support local businesses while bringing the community together for a relaxed and enjoyable Sunday experience.
