

Saltire Facilities Management kick start delivery of 15-year servicing, maintenance, and installations contract in Midlands

Monday 10 August, 2020

Last week, Glasgow-based Saltire Facilities Management, commenced work on a 15-year servicing, maintenance, and installations contract for Stonewater, a social housing provider who manage over 32,000 properties across England.

Saltire, a national central heating and electrical services provider, was awarded the contract to deliver services in the company's "West region" including Stonewater properties in West Midlands, Worcestershire, Staffordshire and Warwickshire. The contract, which could run for up to 15 years, cements Saltire's position as one of the largest central heating service providers in the UK.

Stonewater, a Leicestershire-based social housing provider, is one of the fastest growing social housing providers in the UK having built up a portfolio of over 32,000 managed properties, in the short period since the company was formed in 2015. Stonewater specialises in retirement and supported living schemes as well as offering affordable properties for general rent, shared ownership, and sale.

Saltire General Manager John Reynolds commented; "We were delighted to be successfully awarded this significant contract with Stonewater. Our teams are excited to get started having spent the past few months preparing for this. With the current Covid situation making everything a bit more challenging, it is great to get started.

"This contract is a particularly important one for Saltire as we will use the new Midlands base to rapidly expand our private, domestic business in the region."

Saltire, who were recently acquired by UK building sector investment group United Capital, directly employ over 320 people across the UK and the Stonewater contract sees the company branch into the Midlands for the first time. The contract will be managed locally by Operations Manager, Mick Vale, from the company's new Birmingham office.
