ScamAid Launches Global Fund Recovery Services to Support Victims of Online Scams

Monday 5 January, 2026

ScamAid today announced the launch of its global fund recovery services, aimed at helping individuals recover money lost to online investment scams.

ScamAid supports victims of unregulated trading platforms, including binary options, forex and cryptocurrency schemes. The company works with clients worldwide, assisting in a structured recovery process designed to pursue lost funds clearly and transparently.

With offices in London and Zurich, ScamAid operates internationally and offers multilingual support to clients across Europe, North America, and other regions. The company combines financial and legal expertise to assess each case individually and determine the most appropriate recovery path.

In addition to fund recovery, ScamAid places strong emphasis on education and prevention. The company aims to help clients better understand how online investment scams operate, reducing the risk of future financial loss.

ScamAid's mission is to assist scam victims in recovering their funds as efficiently as possible, while contributing to greater awareness and accountability within the online investment space.
