Sims opens new ITAD site in Norway

Wednesday 8 July, 2015

Katrineholm, Sweden (08 July 2015) – Sims Recycling Solutions opens IT Asset Disposal (ITAD) and Recycling site in Sarpsborg, Norway. Located close to the capital, Oslo, the plant specializes in the efficient gathering and processing of IT products and "electronic scrap".Sims offers a complete range of in-house services for customers, including digital data destruction, re-use and recycling.

Working closely with the Sims Recycling Solutions site in Katrineholm, Sweden, this site will further increase our ability to service clients in Scandinavia. The expansion into Norway marks an additional enhancement to the Sims Recycling Solutions global footprint and will allow Sims to keep up with increased demand for integrated and global ITAD solutions.

Steve Skurnac, President of Sims Recycling Solutions stated "As leaders in the industry we will continue to develop and expand our ITAD services across the globe in an effort to better accommodate our customer's current and future needs."
