Skyline Marketing Announce Competition to Win Trip to Australia

Wednesday 13 January, 2016

Sales and marketing firm, Skyline Marketing have revealed the details of their competition to win a business trip to Australia.

Skyline Marketing will be travelling to Australia in February for the 2016 Australian Sales Awards. The firm have planned to attend the awards in order to network with fellow business professionals within the sales and marketing industry and to learn new skills from the successful Australian sales and marketing leaders and business owners.

The firm have also revealed that they are running an exclusive competition to take the top performing independent sales representatives on an all-expenses paid trip to Australia. “This is an extremely exciting and possibly a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for our self-employed contractors," highlights Jamie Talbot, Managing Director of Skyline Marketing. He added, “We hope that the competition will motivate every individual to push their abilities further and see more successes."

Whilst in Australia the firm and their competition winners will visit the Australian sales offices to network with successful business professionals, attend the Awards Ceremony and then take some time out to enjoy what the country has to offer. This will include activities such as scuba diving on the Great Barrier Reef and visiting all of the spectacular sights.

Skyline Marketing are confident that this competition and the exclusive prize trip to Australia is going to be hugely motivating for the business as a collective and believe that this will drive record-breaking results for the firm; who have recently announced their plans to expand into 2 new locations this quarter. The exclusive business trip is yet another example of the firm's success and is guaranteed to push the firm out of their comfort zone and into new successes.
