Press release – 26.03.2026, Manchester, UK

Manchester, UK – SLA Medical, the Manchester-based clinic founded by Nurse SarahLouise, is continuing to build its reputation in advanced skin health with a strong focus on helping patients manage persistent, complex and confidence-affecting acne.

Founded in 2016 by Nurse SarahLouise, SLA Medical has grown from a small clinic into an established name in medical aesthetics, with the clinic positioning itself around personalised treatment plans, innovation and patient safety. The clinic offers a range of skin treatments, including dedicated acne treatment designed for patients dealing with chronic breakouts, deep cystic spots and lingering post-acne marks.

At SLA Medical, acne treatment is approached as more than a cosmetic concern. The clinic recognises that acne can have a significant effect on confidence, comfort and overall wellbeing, especially in more persistent or severe cases. Its treatment approach is designed to address the root causes of breakouts while also supporting longer-term skin health through tailored plans based on the individual patient's skin history, concerns and goals.

SLA Medical's acne treatment offering is suitable for a wide range of patients, including teenagers experiencing hormonal breakouts and adults dealing with adult-onset acne. According to the clinic's treatment information, plans may include options such as chemical peels, light-based therapies, personalised facials and prescription-strength topical support, depending on the patient's needs.

"Acne is never just about the surface of the skin," said Nurse SarahLouise, founder and owner of SLA Medical. "For many patients, especially those with persistent or more severe acne, it can affect confidence, comfort and daily life. Our focus is on understanding the full picture and creating a treatment plan that is realistic, personalised and results-driven."

She added: "Some of the most rewarding cases we see are patients who have tried countless over-the-counter products without success. When we can help bring stubborn acne under control, reduce active breakouts and support healthier skin over time, it can make a genuinely meaningful difference."

The clinic says professional acne treatment can offer benefits beyond reducing active blemishes, including helping to calm redness and irritation, improve skin texture and tone, and reduce the risk of future breakouts. For patients affected by post-acne scarring and pigmentation, a more structured, medically led plan can also play an important role in longer-term skin improvement.

With its continued emphasis on tailored care and measurable skin improvement, SLA Medical is positioning its acne work as a core part of its broader mission: helping patients feel more confident in their skin through safe, personalised and experience-led treatment.
