?Socialbox.biz Joins The ‘Buy Social Corporate Challenge’

Thursday 11 May, 2017

SocialBox.Biz, a London-based social business venture that provides cloud-based services and laptop handovers to the homeless, elderly, and displaced refugees in the UK, this week officially joined in this year’s Buy Social Corporate Challenge. As a Social Enterprise UK-founded initiative that encourages corporations to diversify their supply chains with social business venture services, SocialBox.Biz gladly submitted to join the challenge.

“Supply chain diversification is beneficial for both a company workforce and the overall client satisfaction,” said Peter Paduh, Founder of SocialBox.Biz. “By partaking in this challenge, we’ll be gaining exposure for our operation whilst also helping corporations to learn about the sustainability of social business ventures. It’s a perfect situation.”

As a partner in the challenge, SocialBox.Biz will be one of the social business ventures opening up their services to corporations.

“The Buy Social Corporate Challenge is about encouraging businesses to do more through their supply chains, but also to inspire social enterprises to develop their products and services to grow their impact. I’m delighted to see SocialBox.Biz rising to meet this challenge and am sure they will bring real value to their clients,” said Charlie Wigglesworth, Director of Business & Enterprise, Social Enterprise UK

Social Enterprise UK is still looking for more participants in this year’s challenge. In order to reach their goal, £1 billion by 2020, they are in search of 23 to 30 more participating companies.
