Practical Ways to Demonstrate Corporate and Social Responsibility

London, United Kingdom (December 28, 2015) – SocialBox.biz has launched their newest update to their corporate mission of making big changes in the world through practical methods. The newly launched blog entitled Constant Positive Impact is a way for SocialBox to highlight corporate social responsibility.

The blog is a means of expansion for SocialBox.biz. The company has seen rapid growth since mid-2015 and with growth comes the need to expand. By providing an outlet that is inviting, focused and creative, SocialBox is encouraging its writing team to express the mission of SocialBox through more than a product alone.

“Not only will the blog foster creativity among our team, it'll help branch us into the modern era where blogs and bloggers are becoming significantly important,” says Sam from marketing department for SocialBox.biz and its chief blogger. “The blog will be yet another way that SocialBox will be able to spread our mission of encouraging others to become a force for doing good.”

The blog will soon feature more posts from guest writers as well as insights from those working with the growing social enterprise company. The Constant Positive Impact Blog currently highlights posts from authors discussing the importance of Social Enterprises as well as a “welcome” of sorts to the blog.
