Dublin, Ireland, Friday 23 January 2015: Brite:Bill, the Dublin based billing communications platform provider today announced the creation of 100 new jobs as part of a major recruitment drive.

The new posts come on foot of recent major multi million dollar contract wins in North America and will be based in its HQ in Dublin and in its North American offices. The company is looking to hire a mix of specialised talent across all areas of the business with an immediate requirement for software developers, system architects and project managers. The 100 new recruits will be hired over the next two years with half coming on board in 2015.

Brite:Bill has been supported in its growth and development by the Department of Jobs, Enterprise and Innovation through Enterprise Ireland.

Alan Coleman, CEO, Brite:Bill commented: "The past year has exceeded all of our expectations and I am so proud of the company's success. We have a clear vision and a clear plan for how we will achieve our aggressive goals. These are important new roles and the people who come on board in these jobs will be key in supporting our rapid growth and will help us build and scale the company".

At the announcement of the new positions Richard Bruton TD, Minister for Jobs, Enterprise and Innovation said: "Today's announcement by Brite:Bill is great news for Dublin and for Ireland. At the heart of our jobs plan is developing a powerful engine of Irish enterprise, and Brite:Bill is a great example of the type of company we are trying to support through our growing programme of overseas activities. Today's announcement that it is creating extra jobs off the back of impressive contract wins in overseas markets is a huge boost, and is testament to the leadership and entrepreneurial endeavour of its management team. I wish Alan and the team every success for the future".

Liam Davis COO, Brite:Bill, added: "It's an exciting time for Brite:Bill; we're on target for 2015 and beyond and it's a great time to join an innovative, successful company. Our new HQ premises in Dublin city will offer a great environment for new employees and we look forward to welcoming new talent, with a passion for technology and innovation, to help us shape the business going forward".

Welcoming the announcement Kevin Sherry, Enterprise Ireland Head of International Sales and Partnering, said: "Enterprise Ireland has worked closely with Brite:Bill, particularly through our North American offices, in supporting them to win new export sales and increase employment. Its success in securing Blue Chip customers in international markets based on strong IP product solutions is a clear recognition of the capabilities of the company and we look forward to continuing to work with them as they grow their global business".
