Star of BBC1'S The Voice John Quinn releases New Single & Music Video Dynamite with his band The Fleeting Minds

Monday 3 February, 2014

On 01/02/14, BBC1's The Voice featured John Quinn performing Jake Bugg's 'Lightning Bolt'.
John and his band 'The Fleeting Minds' have just released a new single called Dynamite (with music video). Dynamite is an Indie, Rock, Post Brit Pop track about an explosive relationship between a boy and girl. The song is available to download from the iTunes Store now

The Band recorded the single along with other tracks at the Assault and Battery Studio in London with BAFTA award winning Producer Matthew Lawrence (Mumford and Sons, Keane, Ellie Goulding and Adele). The band are planning an Album release later this year.

Blending atmospheric elements of the 1960's with the memorable tunes of the 1990's, The Fleeting Minds give rise to a modernistic mix of Brit Pop, Indie and Rock. Between them the band have supported the likes of Snow Patrol,Shed 7, The Rifles, Mark Morris (The Bluetones), Proud Mary and The Moons.

After working with the band, Matthew Lawrence quoted "I'm really impressed with what I've seen so far. I have worked with many bands and feel The Fleeting Minds have something special".

Peter Cox, a fan from Leicester: “I was part of a group of people who followed The White Stripes before they made it big and we see the same potential in The Fleeting Minds”.

The band have been receiving rave reviews for their style and raw talent and have already been interviewed on various Radio stations including BBC Introducing, LAB FM and On FM. Art and Soul Magazine described the band as being 'visually as stunning as they are sonically'.

The Peterborough based band comprise of Singer Songwriter John Quinn (Vocals and Guitars), Paul Blant (Drums and Backing Vocals), John Dalton (Guitar) and Louis Speed (Bass).
