Success Corcaigh Attend Heineken Kinsale Rugby Sevens Tournament

Monday 13 May, 2013

James Neal, Managing Director of Success Corcaigh, the newest and fastest growing sales and marketing company in Cork, this weekend attended the 25th annual Heineken Kinsale Rugby Sevens tournament to demonstrate his support of local businesses and events across Cork County.
The Heineken Kinsale Rugby Sevens tournament has rapidly become one of Europe's largest and most popular Rugby Tournaments, attracting crowds from not just across Cork City and Cork County but throughout Ireland and mainland Europe. The event is an important date in the calendar for all Rugby fans and festival goers alike, the perfect combination of sport and entertainment has made the event what it is today.

Managing Director of Success Corcaigh, James Neal said of the weekend "I felt that this been my first year in Ireland I ought to experience some of the local festivities and I have to say I've never seen anything like it, so many people so passionate about the rugby and enjoying themselves it was an unbelievable experience. The event was incredibly well organised, the teams played fantastically and the whole atmosphere and environment created was amazing. It's so refreshing to see how much of an influence and impact great sporting events such as these can make on an small town like Kinsale, the whole area was alive with active into the early hours it was a great spectacle and we will definitely be visiting again."
