The Appoly Development Team Upgrade to a New Headquarters in Leamington Spa

Wednesday 24 July, 2019

In July 2019, Leamington Spa based web and app development company, Appoly, upgraded their headquarters to accommodate rapid growth since being founded by James Merrix in late 2017.

From Bedrooms to Offices

If you're aware of the Appoly's rapid growth, it may be hard to believe it was only less than two years ago, in late 2017 that Appoly began its life from the bedroom of Managing Director, James Merrix.

After years of experience within various sectors of industry, James had seen and helped many web and app-based businesses go from concept to successful reality. It was enough to inspire James to start his web and mobile app technology studio, Appoly.

As soon as businesses were able to see the quality of work that James was producing at Appoly, it wasn't long before a team was needed to fulfil the developmental demands of clients.

James, alongside his newly formed team of development experts, would spend the next year working on some fascinating projects, including a developer focused Research and Development program from Appoly's Beauchamp House HQ in Leamington Spa.

A Developing Technology Company

The experienced team at Appoly developed a reputation for high-quality work. The demand for Appoly's development services and the portfolio was very quickly building, so was the team.

Before long, James had built a team of 12 passionate development experts who were just as enthused about the industry as he was.

The accumulative knowledge, passion and solid work ethic of the team would help Appoly to complete an array of exciting projects for a variety of businesses.

As more people became aware of the incredible work taking place at Appoly, demand only grew larger.

Moving on Up

By the middle of 2019, it was apparent to Appoly that they were outgrowing their Beauchamp House HQ.

Having such a strong team and satisfied client base, James decided the only option would be to upgrade headquarters to enable the further growth of Appoly.

The new headquarters are much more sizeable and provide room for Appoly to grow and develop even further.

The new headquarters situated on Clarendon Avenue, part of Leamington Spa's BID area (business improvement district).

The team at Appoly are very proud to be representing the business in Leamington Spa, and the Midlands on the whole.
