The CKB Ltd ® Time Tutelary Deluxe Automatic Double Watch Winder Stands the Test of Time

Thursday 5 May, 2016

The CKB Ltd ® Time Tutelary deluxe automatic double watch winder KA073not only rotates in both clockwise and anti-clockwise directions, it also has four rotation sequences ensuring you have flexibility to choose the correct setting for your timepiece.

Watch winders are very popular particularly with automatic, self-winding, watch collectors. They are, however, also of benefit to any owner of an automatic watch as they are a convenient way to ensure your timepiece continues to run when not on your wrist.

Automatic watches operate by winding themselves using a moving weight inside the piece which rotates while the watch is worn and it is this which turns the winding mechanism inside the timepiece. However, if the watch is not worn this process will not occur and its energy or power level will run down and eventually stop.

Whilst virtually all automatic watches can be manually wound, it is not always convenient for the wearer and this is where the CKB Ltd ® Time Tutelary deluxe automatic double watch winder KA073comes in very useful. This device, with its handy viewing window, encases the watch and moves it in such a way as to mimic the natural motion of being on a wearers arm – it is this movement which operates the self-winding mechanism. Whilst a winder cannot over wind an automatic watch, it is still important to use a timer-based winder product to prevent excessive wear on the winding mechanism and what could be better than having not one but four premium silent motor timer sequences to choose from?

The first timer sequence, mode A, automatically rotates for six minutes in a clockwise direction and then rests for thirty minutes. The next sequence, mode B, also automatically rotates for six minutes but this time in an anti-clockwise direction. It then also rests for thirty minutes. Mode C automatically rotates for twenty minutes in a clockwise direction, rests for ten minutes, automatically rotates anti-clockwise for a further twenty minutes and then rests for ten minutes. The final sequence, mode D, alternates every ten minutes between rotating clockwise and anti-clockwise for a three-hour period and then remains stationary for nine hours.

Colin Betteridge, Director of CKB Ltd ®, a globally trading online e-commerce business, said:

"The CKB Ltd ® Time Tutelary deluxe automatic double watch winder KA073is a winder with a difference. This device really is quiet! Its modern design, which can hold two watches using the one rotation, includes a fantastic pull out drawer which has 3 separate compartments for use when storing other watches, cuff links, rings, etc. This easy to operate watch winder is also extremely practical as it is able to hold large faced watches due to the wide clearance between the lid and where the watch sits. CKB Ltd ® offer various other watch winder models too in order to cater for differing customer needs."

Coming beautifully gift boxed and complete with a UK plug and AC adaptor, the CKB Ltd ® Time Tutelary deluxe automatic double watch winder is in stock now.
