The Crawleys win national wedding photographer of the year 2019

Friday 10 May, 2019

Manchester wedding photographers The Crawleys are this years proud winners of The Wedding Industry Awards (TWIA) national wedding photographer of the year. The Crawleys have been photographing weddings all over the UK and destination weddings worldwide since 2002. During their career they have won many awards but non as big as this one. TWIA is currently the most credible competition in the wedding industry and begins with the regional competition. Winners of their region then compete for the national award which is presented to the winners in January at Cafe de Paris in London. The first round is heavily focused on client feedback and progression from the first round leads on to the photographers work being judged by some of the most influential photographers in the UK. The Crawleys, Liam (photographer) and Bee (image editor), were understandably ecstatic with their triumph. Liam explains; "We've won plenty of awards in our time in this industry but this one means the most to us. To win the North West regional award was huge for us and to then go on and win the national award felt like a dream. This award holds the most weight in the wedding industry and we are so proud of our achievement, which we couldn't have won without constantly pushing the boundaries in our craft and offering the best possible experience to our clients".Details of their regional award can be found on the TWIA website HERE. Details of their national award can be found on the TWIA website HERE.
