

The Mailing Room launches new branding together with an interactive website

Tuesday 22 April, 2014

From the 3rd April 2014, The Mailing Room have re-launched its brand to reflect its customer focus and quality service offering.

Over the past few years, the way in which the business community send and manage outbound mail has changed dramatically. Just as the mailing environment has evolved and matured, The Mailing Room has adapted to provide the very best for their customers.

In short, The Mailing Room help their customers explore a more comprehensive view of mailing equipment, services, support and discounts to achieve optimum savings and efficiencies within their mailing environment.

Their knowledge, learning and relationships with the world's leading manufacturers over the years have enabled them to develop a new and unique way to operate. This is more than simply supplying equipment; it's a complete mailing room solution, giving their customers choices to allow for the best decisions for their business.

The company's rebrand and new website is aimed at ensuring that customers fully understand who provides their mailing services and who provides the first line support. Previously operating as FP Mailing (North West) Ltd & FP Executive Agency Ltd, the business has also been dual branded as The Mailing Room for the past 6 years. To ensure all customers are clear who is their provider moving forward, the company will be fully branded as The Mailing Room.

As part of the rebrand, The Mailing Room have also launched a new interactive website with improved information, simpler navigation and online support functionality. All this is to ensure that their customers are supported to the highest level and to provide online expertise in-conjunction with their field account managers. Andrew Parmenter, Marketing Manager at The Mailing Room commented; "By ensuring our brand is instantly recognisable as the markets leading supplier of mailing services and equipment, will assure our customers they are being supported by the best in the industry. We pride ourselves in providing expert advice which means we advise on the choices available from our 'best of breed' product range. Our customers gain postal discounts and process efficiency by working with us and our improved branding is designed to ensure this is recognised."

The Mailing Room's rebrand coincides with the Royal Mail recent launch of the new Mailmark product to enable additional discounts for franking machine users.
