These robotic bartenders will make you the perfect Mojito

Tuesday 25 July, 2017

Introverts who prefer machines to humans will be pleased to know that a Las Vegas bar has recently introduced robotic bartenders.

Whether you like it shaken, stirred or muddled The Tipsy Robot can make a huge variety of cocktails starting at just $14 dollars or provide customs options to make a truly unique drink but if you like something more traditional a range of themed drinks are available such as the Droid of Dublin, Mr. Robot, Time machine or Stellar Spritzer.

Customers are required to create an account on the Tipsy Robot app where they can add their drink orders to the queue and then simply collect when ready.

The robots can make around 50-60 drinks per hour with an average wait time of 70 seconds.

Despite the bots mixing skills however regular humans will still play a small part as they’re not quite advanced enough to handle a pint of beer.

The firm plans to open more futuristic bars in other cities next year.
