

Top 10 places to use a remote control vibrator.

Wednesday 1 January, 2014

When it comes to pleasuring your partner or spicing up your love life with sex toys, a popular choice falling within the couples sex toys category are remote control vibrators. We all remember scenes in recent Hollywood RomCom's where remote control love eggs have been used to provide intense pleasure to women in awkward situations. However, when it comes to slotting these pleasure marvels into your own love life, it's important to take out the comedy aspect, leaving her with nothing to do but discreetly enjoy.

Most would be forgiven to think that remote control vibrators are simply a sex toy for her. However, in truth, when used at the right time and in the right place, both ladies and their partners can get equally as much pleasure, albeit in very different ways. Such a sex toy provides a mind blowing, toe curling distraction from the current situation she finds herself in and delving into the psychologies of sex a little more, any gentlemen in control of when she is able to receive such pleasure, inevitably heightens his alpha male status, masculinity and dominance, something more often than not gained during sex.

Aside from both the physical and psychological excitement experienced during the use of this popular sex toy, there is an overwhelming undertone of simply naughtiness, which leads millions of couples each year onto online sex toy shops, such as Britain's longest running and vastly coveted Magic Moments, in search of a little spice. Use as a thrilling prelude or replacement to exciting foreplay with complete discretion and when experimenting with locations to use such a love toy, remember to take some of the below suggestions and simply run with them.

If you have never used a remote control vibrator before it's important that the gentlemen makes his leading lady feel comfortable. Before heading out, why not enjoy a little adults play whilst inserting the love egg, providing a teasing and sexier tonic to application? When it comes to ideal locations to use such a sex toy, it's also worth taking a note that some places work and others simply don't, as intimacy and discretion inevitably must prevail.

A night out at the theatre catching your favourite show, an anniversary dinner at a fancy restaurant or out for drinks with your partner will all provide suitable occasions to experiment and tease with such a sex toy. The truth is, when gentlemen pick the right moments, there will be nothing left for both him and her to do but sit back and enjoy discreetly. Remembering to keep the excitement in short sharp spurs to avoid gaining unwanted attention, choose your time carefully and she will do nothing but repay the favour later on.

Why not take it outdoors? Sunbathing at the beach, in the garden or even catching with your loved one during an afternoon stroll through the countryside can all bring nature into your sex life and add a thrust of excitement into your relationship. Especially perfect at making her feel comfortable, a remote control vibrator will inevitably bring more diversity to the pleasure gentlemen are able to give and receive, without him feeling emasculated by its presence.

Other tempting places to use such a vibrator include the shower (whilst hubby teasingly listens from the next room), or during a journey. We're not quite suggesting use during the bustling Monday morning commute (unless that's your thing!), but a midnight train or car journey away for a romantic weekend sets up the opportunity for her sit back and unwind in ways she never could have previously imagined.

Wrapping up today's naughty talk, the bedroom and at concerts complete the definitive list of places to use a remote control vibrator. Such a sex toy can provide unimaginable pleasure to a women from a gentleman's perspective in places you never thought possible. Treat him and her to the perfect toy and make it a very sexy new year.
