TopUp Consultants, Ordnance Survey and RICS to reveal their development of disruptive commercial valuation technology at MIPIM UK

Monday 17 October, 2016

London, England, 17 October 2016

TopUp Consultants, a leading international PropTech consultancy based in London, will speak at the Innovation Forum at MIPIM UK on Thursday 20 October at 11.45.

Kyri Striftombolas, TopUp Consultant's Managing Director, will be joined by James Terry, Product Manager, APIs Digital Engineering, Products & Innovations at Ordnance Survey and Dan Hughes, Director of Data & Information Products at RICS, to discuss the journey of developing a technology application that will disrupt the time-consuming process of compiling data for commercial property valuations.

CVP, which stands for Commercial Valuation Portal, is the result of a partnership between TopUp Consultants, Ordnance Survey and RICS. The idea came about after market research by RICS identified that commercial valuers waste a significant amount of time searching multiple websites for accurate information on property and surrounding areas.

The portal will make it far easier for commercial valuers to get all of the trusted data they need by combining the 28 most used data sets in a single place, all validated by Ordnance Survey. Customers will be able to make a one-off purchase, sign up for an annual subscription or integrate data directly into their chosen platform.

TopUp's Managing Director, Kyri Striftombolas, says:

"CVP will become the single source for UK commercial valuation data.

The portal will combine all the essential and nice-to-have data sources in one place – saving hours of work for anyone involved in preparing valuations on commercial property.

The feedback we've had so far has been tremendous from both independent surveyors who make the odd one-off purchase and valuers at large corporates – both of whom can't wait for us to launch."

Kyri will take to the Innovation Forum stage at MIPIM UK on Thursday 20 October at 1145 to explain the process of developing a product in partnership with two high profile organisations (Ordnance Survey and RICS).
