

?Trust in business to behave ethically recovers (slightly), according to survey from the Institute of Business Ethics

Tuesday 12 December, 2017

Tax avoidance and executive pay remain the top issues business needs to address

12th December 2017 : The British public's opinion of business behaviour appears to be improving, according to the latest survey conducted for the Institute of Business Ethics.

The survey, published today, shows that the public's general opinion about ethical business behaviour has improved. Over half (52%) now say they consider that business behaves ethically, a slight recovery from last year's dip (48%), but not yet back up to 2015 levels (59%).

The strength of negative opinion is also decreasing, with fewer people now saying that business behaves "not at all ethically" (down from 9% in 2012 to 5% in 2017).

Since the survey began in 2003, the British public's opinion has consistently leant more towards judging business as behaving 'ethically' than 'not ethically'. However, last year, public opinion fell significantly, down 11 percentage points compared to 2015.

Philippa Foster Back CBE, IBE's Director, said: "Although these results are encouraging, this may be related to the scandals which have affected other institutions in society over the course of 2017. By contrast, business appears more responsible in the eyes of the public. The fact that corporate tax avoidance and executive pay remain the top public concerns is an example where business is still not doing enough to address ethical issues."

The top 3 issues that the public think business needs to address remain unchanged for a fourth consecutive year.

Tax avoidance has been one of the top two issues since it was first introduced in the survey in 2012, with 38% considering this an issue that needs to be addressed, down from 43% last year.

Philippa Foster Back CBE said: "Tax is a difficult and complex issue, but it isn't going away. This year the Paradise and Panama Papers have thrown this issue even more into the spotlight. Companies need to do more to address public concern and communicate the circumstances behind the tax positions they decide to take"

Executive pay continues to be an issue, with 30% of the public thinking this still needs to be addressed (up from 28% last year).

Philippa Foster Back CBE commented: "Although there has been some movement on this issue by companies, as past shareholder approved policies take effect, it will still take time to move the dial. Naturally the public perception is that the changes are not quick enough."

Exploitative labour* and work-home balance for employees also remain concerns, but Employees being able to speak up about wrong doing enters the top 5 with 17% raising this as an issue of concern.

Philippa Foster Back CBE said: "Although we are seeing a rise in the number of companies providing channels for employees to raise concerns, companies still need to listen to what they are saying. If employees repeatedly speak up and don't feel heard, they might stop talking. And that silence can be dangerous."

#IBESurvey

ENDS/

To obtain jpegs of the infographic, or to organise interviews or articles, please contact Katherine Bradshaw, Head of Communications 07771 517700 k.bradshaw@ibe.org.uk

Media:

Attitudes of the British Public to Business Ethics 2017

Attitudes of the British Public to Business Ethics 2017

Attitudes of the British Public to Business Ethics 2017

Related Sectors:

Business & Finance :: Charities & non-profits :: Education & Human Resources :: Opinion Article :: Public Sector & Legal ::

Related Keywords:

Survey :: Trust :: Business :: Business Ethics :: Tax Avoidance :: Executive Pay :: Remuneration :: Speak Up :: Whistleblowing ::

Scan Me:

EDITOR'S NOTES

Attitudes of the British Public to Business Ethics – 2017 Survey
Free Infographic download from www.ibe.org.uk

Published: 12th December 2017

About the Survey

Since 2003, the Institute of Business Ethics has commissioned Ipsos MORI to carry out an annual survey asking British adults their opinion on the ethical behaviour of British business and the issues that most need addressing.

The two questions asked are:

Q1: How ethically do you think British business generally behaves?

Q2: In your view of company behaviour, which two or three of these issues most need addressing?

*In 2014 'Sweatshop labour' was changed to 'Exploitative labour'.

Research methodology:

The research is conducted on behalf of the IBE by Ipsos MORI. This year, 2,003 GB adults aged 18+ completed an online survey between 08-15 September 2017. Data has been weighted to reflect the adult population (18-65) in the UK in terms of age, gender, region, class, ethnicity, housing tenure and occupational status.

Change

in methodology. In 2016 the study moved from face-to-face interviewing to online surveying. It is acknowledged that studies suggest online surveys elicit more 'don't know' responses compared to face-to-face surveys, as respondents are considered to be more comfortable in saying that they are unsure about something when not responding face-to-face.

About the Institute of Business Ethics

The Institute of Business Ethics, whose purpose is to promote high standards of business behaviour based on ethical values, is an important partner to any business wanting to preserve its long-term reputation by doing business in the right way.

For over 30 years, the IBE has advised organisations on how to strengthen their ethical culture by sharing knowledge and good practice, resulting in relationships with employees and stakeholders that are based on trust.

The IBE is a registered charity funded by corporate and individual subscriptions. www.ibe.org.uk @ibeuk

Company Contact:

—

Institute of Business Ethics

T. 020 7798 6040

E. k.bradshaw@ibe.org.uk

W. <https://www.ibe.org.uk>

View Online

Additional Assets:

Newsroom: Visit our Newsroom for all the latest stories:

<https://www.ibe.pressat.co.uk>