TruV Group Expands UK NHS Footprint with Workforce Optimisation Agreement Supporting Barts Health NHS Trust

London, United Kingdom, 23 June 2026

TruV Group, a workforce optimisation and healthcare technology company focused on improving operational efficiency across complex workforce environments, today announced the execution of a multi-year agreement supporting Barts Health NHS Trust and additional NHS organisations within the United Kingdom.

The agreement will support the deployment of TruV Group's workforce technology platforms across NHS environments, helping to streamline operational processes, improve visibility, reduce administrative burden and support a more efficient experience for healthcare professionals, workforce teams and wider NHS personnel.

Barts Health NHS Trust is one of the largest NHS trusts in England, providing healthcare services to approximately 2.5 million people across East London. The Trust has continued to invest in digital transformation and workforce modernisation initiatives designed to improve operational efficiency, strengthen workforce processes and enhance the staff experience.

TruV Group's platform is designed to help healthcare organisations manage complex workforce activity with greater structure, consistency and oversight. By supporting improved process management, operational visibility and workforce engagement, the platform helps organisations respond more effectively to the growing demands placed on healthcare systems.

"The UK healthcare sector continues to face significant operational and workforce challenges," said Zaph Memon of TruV Group. "We believe this agreement represents an important step forward in helping NHS organisations modernise key workforce operations, improve efficiency and support frontline healthcare delivery."

"From the beginning, TruV Group worked closely with our operational and workforce teams to understand the real-world challenges facing large NHS organisations," said Liam Slattery, Director of People Services, Barts Health NHS Trust. "As workforce pressures continue across the NHS, having modern systems that improve efficiency, visibility and staff experience is increasingly important."

The deployment comes at a time when NHS organisations across the UK are continuing to invest in digital infrastructure, automation, analytics and operational technologies designed to improve healthcare delivery, strengthen workforce sustainability and support more resilient service models.

TruV Group believes the agreement provides a strong foundation for continued growth within the UK healthcare technology sector as NHS organisations continue to modernise workforce operations and invest in digital transformation.
