These group tours, designed exclusively for those aged between 18-35 are a low cost alternative to their new range of Overland Tours in Africa which offer a higher standard of accommodation including hotels and permanent tents and incorporate a number of flights to cover large distances which would usually be travelled over a number of long travel days.

Tucan Travel have also launched a range of new Adventure Tours in South East Asia, spending more time in northern Vietnam and Cambodia where the company has seen a growth in interest and enquiries. They also have three new tours of Myanmar, two new Adventure Tours in Sri Lanka and one in Japan.

Matt Gannan, CEO of Tucan Travel is quoted, “We have spent the last few months taking a look at what our clients want out of the ideal adventure travel experience and found that we could make many changes to improve their trips of a lifetime. Our new products have all been created as a result of the success of a series of new group tours launched this time last year, all of which were a great success and we hope that the release of these new group tours created with the same concept will be as successful.”

With so many new group tours on their website, Tucan Travel have created a webpage which summarises the new tours in each region. This webpage is designed to give each region the attention and detail necessary for agents and clients to appreciate the many changes and updates to their product.
