

UK car sales and savings continue to go from strength to strength with AUTOeBID

Thursday 7 November, 2013

Despite the rocky British economy, the UK car market has seen a steady 4 percent increase last month in comparison to the previous year (October 2012) according to the Society of Motor Manufacturers.

This has led to an impressive 10.2 percent increase in car sales since the start of the year, adding signs that the UK economy could be recovering despite the ongoing euro debt crisis.

Although this sales increase looks promising for the motor industry, it has become evident UK consumers are becoming more savvy in the way in which they purchase high price items.

One company that has witnessed this new type of consumer behaviour is AUTOeBID. AUTOeBID is an online marketplace where dealerships battle it out to secure a possible sale.

With a 98% customer satisfaction rating and thousands of active users, AUTOeBID has already saved its customers millions in new car RRP prices. In some cases users have saved in excess of £10,000 per vehicle with an overall 200 percent increase in savings by AUTOeBID alone.

Amin Saleem Managing Director at AUTOeBID has said "We provide consumers with the means of finding out how low car dealers will really go on price. This is extremely hard to replicate when dealing with a single dealer"

One happy new BMW 3 Series owner said:

I approached a few dealers directly but none were able to match the autoebid price. Excellent communication during the entire process.

Having been trading for over 10 years, taken over £200 m in orders and recommended by Which? Magazine, AUTOeBID is trusted by both first time buyers and long standing businesses.
