Looking at results from a recent study, Ventas Central were pleased to discover that London has the highest start-up rate in the country. This means that more new businesses start in the capital every year than anywhere else in the country. London was also came out on top for fast growing businesses with 19 per cent of its businesses showing annual employment growth of 20 per cent or more.

However, the firm were shocked to discover that the entrepreneurs who are most likely to reach £1m turnover within three years are based in Northern Ireland. Around 6 per cent of national businesses achieve this, compared with 10 per cent in Ulster, located in Northern Ireland. Ventas Central believe that this is due to the fact that the region has plentiful public funding for business loans and grants, which gives more help to the start-ups trying to achieve this kind of growth.

The study also revealed that poor strategy and management were the biggest barriers that stopped growth, according to the small and medium sized enterprises that were surveyed. Some 53 per cent referred to it as a block, compared with 39 per cent who mentioned lack of skills among the workforce. Access to finance, blamed by 27 per cent, was the fourth biggest barrier. Ventas Central firmly believe that having a good strategy in place, which updates as the market changes and develops is a crucial element in the growth of a business and feels that more firms should ensure they have a good strategy in place.
