

W3Coin plans to launch its own Merchant and Payment Card Services

Wednesday 19 July, 2017

PRAGUE, Czech Republic — W3C Gateway SE, an emerging financial services provider, has confirmed that it is to launch its own merchant services and payment card before the end of 2017.

W3C, who intent to create 200 billion digital coins, has already raised $2 million through a crowdsale within the first 24 hours, said CEO Juri Vasselli. Juri confirms that once the crowdsale ends, W3C will immediately announce its powerful merchant services to e-commerce-based vendors/companies across the globe. W3C merchant holders and payment card holders will be able to receive 0.5% to 1.5% reward on each transaction they make. The initial coin offering's first tranche will run for the next 45 days and can be purchased at <http://www.w3coin.io>

The company plans to incentivize sales representatives in the developing world to encourage retailers to accept the digital coin by enabling them to receive an ongoing share of retailers' transactions involving the coin.

W3C plans to offer a W3Coin Wallet, a peer-to-peer exchange, secure and private transactions, merchant services and loyalty rewards along with a unique independent marketing partner programme that will allow individuals and small businesses to earn W3Coin income by participating in development of the W3C merchant network.

W3C was developed on the ERC-20 Ethereum blockchain platform.
